Question - What were the major causes and consequences of the first Carnatic war, and how did the European dynamics play out in the Indian context during this period.

The Austrian War of Succession (1740-48) found its reflection in India and so as in North America which led to the 1st interference in the of European powers in the native politics of India so as to get a greater political mileage.

Root Cause of the 1st Carnatic War (1746-48)

- ① The establishment of Hyderabad as an autonomous state released Carnatic from the legal purview of Hyderabad.
- ② By 1730, Carnatic became autonomous and this opened the gates for "power politics" through the war of succession in Carnatic.
- ③ The lack of a centralised control of Mughal empire on Indian Subcontinent led to French and British to interfere in the politics of Carnatic.

① The French attack on Madras area of British under Duplex led to the bitter fight between the two.

Consequences of 1st Carnatic War

① The Carnatic Nawab Moh'd Anwaruddin became an ally to British by supporting it against French.

② It led to the future wars between French and British for ~~supp~~ installing their candidates in Carnatic.

③ The war ended with the Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle which restored the territories of British and French in India and North America.

The first Carnatic war, though inconclusive, ignited the ^{Imperial} ambition of French and British to establish their colonies in India and paved the way for future Carnatic wars.
