Question - Examine the objectives, methods & limitations of the Swadeshi & Boycott movements (1905-08) and their role in promoting the principle of Atrushakti.
The partition of Bengal in 1905 marked a watershed in the Indian National movement. Conceived by British as an administrative method was perceived as an attempt to divide Nationalist forces on communal lines which transformed the anti-partition agitation to organized mass resistance — Swadeshi & Boycott movement.

Objectives and methods of political agitation

- ① Moderate politics — led by SN Banerjee and KK Mitra, focused on petitions, prayers, pamphlets & constitutional agitation.
- ② Constructive Swadeshi / Economic Nationalism — led by Lala Lajpat Rai, Bal Gangadhar Tilak focused on self-reliance / Atrushakti so as to promote Swadeshi enterprises and traditional production methods.
- ③ Boycott & Passive Resistance — led by Bipin chandra Pal, Aurobindo Ghosh aimed at boycotting foreign goods such as Manchester cloth, Liverpool

Salt, foreign sugar etc. They demanded for political autonomy.

① Revolutionary activities - Key figures leading - Barindra Kumar & Upendranath Tagore. It involved individual acts of heroism, assassination and fund raising. As such, Rhudikarn & Bose's assassination of British judge Kingsford in 1908 is one such incident?

Important objectives included indigenous educational institutions as well.

Role in promoting the principle of Atmashakti

① India's first pharma company - BCPW was opened by scientist Aacharya PC Ray in 1901, which focused on creating advanced drugs, med etc

② India's first indigenous maritime company - Swadeshi steam navigation Company (SSNC) was created by V. Chidambaram Pillai which greatly challenged the British maritime dominance.

③ The Charkha (spinning wheel) became the symbol of swadeshi movement and purchasing indigenous goods was regarded as a patriotic duty.

Question -

⑭ The extent of mass participation was profound in a sense that students from Bengal, Maharashtra & Punjab actively supported the movement by replacing answer sheets made of foreign paper.

⑮ Role of Women - Lakshmi Bhandari was opened in 1905 by Sati Sarda Devi Chaudhary in the neighbourhood of Calcutta to promote only Indian made Goods.

⑯ Bengal Textile Corporation was opened by Muslim merchants and landlords which is still a reason why Bengal is a hub of "textile manufacturing".

⑰ Industries for footwear, tannery, pottery, flour mill took roots in the form of Cottage industries in India.

Atinashakti was a major focus of Swadeshi movement but the movement saw reign in the artistic scientific & cultural sectors too.

Limitations of Boycott and Swadeshi Movements

- ① Lack of Social Base — Major contribution was from the urban educated middle class and the assertive intelligentsia. Peasant participation was lacking.
 - ② Internal differences between moderates and extremists gradually lead to weakening of organisational unity, eventually culminating in Swat split in 1907.
 - ③ Reactionary leadership among muslim masses led to the creation of All India muslim league, which is exactly how Curzon wanted to divide Bengal among religious lines.
 - ④ Regional concentration despite national appeal, the movement was concentrated to Bengal, parts of Maharashtra & Punjab.
- The partition of Bengal in 1905 was one of the greatest miscalculations of British authority. while it attempted to attack the "Indian Nationalism", it ended up linking economic self-reliance or "Atmashakti" with political resistance, mass politics and prepared the ideological and organizational foundation on which Gandhian era
