Question - What was the significance of Lucknow Pact 1916 in context of Hindu Muslim unity & the const. develop ment of India? Comment on its -ve & +ve outcomes.
The partition of Bengal 1905 → Sowed the seeds of communal politics, Morley-Minto reforms 1909 institutionalized it, Ironically the Lucknow pact bore the fruits in the form of "communal" harmony though it had long term risks.

Significance and +ve outcomes

- ① Instrument of Mutual trust between Hindu and Muslim communities.
- ② Inclusive political Environment enabling Hindu and Muslims to play more significant roles in each other's affairs (ex - Khilafat Mvt.).
- ③ The Annulment of partition in 1911 upset some sections of society which were initially in support of partitioning, this gave a "united cause" to both Hindu & Muslims to fight with oppressive colonial rule.

Good point about mutual trust between communities. The Pact's significance also lies in it being the first formal agreement between these organizations.

Good historical context with Partition of Bengal and Morley-Minto reforms as precursors to the Lucknow Pact.

The annulment of Bengal partition wasn't exactly a 'united cause' as Hindus generally welcomed it. The unity emerged primarily from organizational collaboration.

Significance in Constitutional development of India

① Both parties (INC & Muslim League) advocated for common demands from British author

a) Increase in elected seats in Councils.
b) Salaries of viceroy, Secretary of State to be drawn from British exchequer instead from Indian revenue.

c) Laws/motions passed with majority in Councils to be accepted as "binding" on British authority.

d) Protection of Minorities.

e) Separation of Judiciary and executive.

At least half of the members from executive and judicial council to be directly elected.

Negative Outcomes

① Short term gain, long term risk - The pact set a precedent for accommodating "separatist" & "communal demands" $\Rightarrow$ direct threat to the secular and democratic fabric of India.

② Criticism from Hindu Sabha - Provinces like UP with non-muslim majority had increased muslim representation $\Rightarrow$ faced criticism.

Good conclusion linking immediate unity benefits with problematic long-term implications.

Well-structured listing of constitutional demands. Note that the demand was for half the Executive Council to include Indians, not direct elections.

Good identification of long-term risks. Separate electorates particularly contributed to legitimizing communal representation supporting partition logic.
